GOP Leaders Take Grip On Ike's Coattails

President Expected To Stage Big Drive To Aid Party Candidates

CINCINNATI (AP)—Republican party leaders grabbed President Eisenhower's political coattails firmly today in an effort to translate the I-like-like appeal of 1952 into congressional victories at the polls in November.

If an apparent majority of members attending the GOP National Committee workshop sessions here has its way, the Eisenhower personality may be pumped into nearly every critical campaign area in the country by on-the-spot and television appearances and by radio appeals.

Rep. Richard Simpson of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, said yesterday Eisenhower is going to be more active in this nonpresidential-year battle for control of Congress than any President in the last 30 years.

While there was doubt Eisenhower would attempt to match the whistle-stopping activities of Democratic former President Truman in 1950, Simpson insisted that "before this campaign is over, by way of personal appearance, television and radio, the President will have done more to influence the election than any president has done in the last 30 years."

"BEYOND ANY question," Simpson said, "as the President considers the picture, his actions between now and the election will reflect the realization that he must have a Republican-controlled House and Senate."

The general reaction among national committee members was one of hope that Eisenhower would put on the kind of vigorous campaign that Simpson outlined.

Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, said "special effort" will be made there to save the Kentucky seat occupied by Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper, who is opposed by Democratic former Vice President Alben Barkley.

State Chairman John Feikens said Michigan Republicans still are counting heavily on a personal appearance by Eisenhower in their state to help recapture the Michigan seat, Homer Ferguson.

Dirksen said he thinks the Republicans may pick up five Senate seats. They now have 48, to 47 Democratic and 1 independent.

Simpson said he is shooting for a net GOP gain of 20 in the House, where the lineup stands at 218 Republicans, 213 Democrats, 1 independent and 3 vacancies.

Dirksen said the five Republican Senate gains might come from New Mexico, Montana, Delaware, Ohio, Illinois, Minnesota and Iowa.

Simpson predicted Republican House gains in some of these states, as well as in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Idaho, California and Kansas.

Airline Awarded Flag-stop Setup

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lake Central Airlines yesterday was authorized by the Civil Aeronautics Board to operate much of its Midwest system on a flag-stop basis. It would mean stopping at cities only when there are passengers or cargo to be discharged or taken aboard.

Zanesville and Dover-New Philadelphia on flights between Columbus and Youngstown; Richmond, Ind., on flights between Indianapolis and Dayton and between Indianapolis and Cincinnati; Springfield on flights between Dayton and Columbus.

Judge Rules Army Promised No Immunity To Turncoat GI

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—The trial judge ruled today that Cpl. Claude Batchelor was not promised immunity by the U. S. Army if he would return to the Allies.

On the basis of this ruling, Lt. Col. Donald L. Manes Jr., law officer or "judge" in the court-martial of Batchelor, turned down a defense motion that all charges against Batchelor be dropped.

Batchelor is charged with collaborating with the enemy and telling on his buddies while he was a prisoner of war in Korea. He at first chose to stay with the Reds but changed his mind.

His attorneys had contended that the Army promised immunity from prosecution to the corporal while he was in Indian custody in the Panmunjom neutral zone if he would return to the Allied side.

Batchelor came home Jan. 1. His trial opened at Fort Sam Houston here yesterday.

BATCHELOR, captured by the Communists in Korea, was one of an original group of 23 Americans who decided not to come back. While in Indian custody, he changed his mind and returned to the Allied side.

Meanwhile, in Ft. Sheridan, Ill., a U. S. Army officer testified that Lt. Col. Harry Fleming advised his fellow prisoners in a North Korean POW camp not to resist the Communists openly because it might result in their being punished.

Fleming's military trial on charges he collaborated with the Communists and committed acts detrimental to his fellow prisoners entered its second day.

Lt. Louis Wilson of Shreveport, La., said under cross examination that Fleming at one time was elected compound leader of the POW's in his camp because he "seemed to get along OK with Kim," the Communist boss.

Maj. David F. MacGhee of Falls Church, Va., another witness called back today for cross-examination, said the number of American casualties in prison camps and their "weakness of moral fiber" would not have been so prevalent "if our leadership had been stronger."

Dulles Plans Making Trip To Manila

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles, obviously concerned over Europe's new defense crisis, arranged to leave tonight for Manila to wind up negotiation for an eight-nation Southeast Asia defense alliance.

France's death blow to the long-cherished European army project cast gloom over his trip.

Top aides said Dulles believes collapse of the European army makes a united defense against communism in Southeast Asia even more important.

The eight-nation conference he is to attend was set up nearly a month ago as a climax to Dulles' campaign to prevent Red aggression in Indochina from spilling over into neighboring areas.

A formal treaty which would seek to meet the Red military threat, as well as the menace of subversion, has been drafted in diplomatic exchanges. Reportedly, only minor points remain to be worked out at the foreign ministers' meeting opening next Monday.

Founding member countries would be the United States, Britain, France, the Philippines, Thailand, Australia, New Zealand and Pakistan. But the alliance would be open to any additional nation in the region.

About the only thing certain in American reaction to the European army crisis was that no single sure fire substitute has been agreed upon by American policy makers.

Dr. Hiltner, acting dean of the Federated Theological Faculty of Chicago University, delivered the first of his four lectures on pastoral counseling.

"Help to a person can never be a matter merely of technique. If the spirit is absent, there is no genuine help," Dr. Hiltner said.

The five-day school for ministers, which closes Friday noon, is being held at Ohio Wesleyan University.

Estep Almost Caught First By Pickaway County Deputy

Theft Suspect Nearly Runs Down Deputy Carl White While On Fairfield-Pickaway County Line Road

Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Carl White came within a hair's breadth Monday afternoon of single-handedly capturing James Estep, 22-year old theft suspect and mental hospital escapee.

Estep, who fled from Columbus after a $145 filling station robbery, was later captured in a Fairfield County cornfield by a posse of deputies, police and farmers.

Deputy White said he was proceeding north on Route 674, which separates Pickaway and Fairfield Counties. At the intersection of Hiner Rd., which leads to Lithopolis, the deputy halted for a stop sign.

He noticed a car bearing down on him from the opposite direction. The second car drove through the intersection without stopping.

WHITE SAID he was about to write down the license number as a stop sign violator when he noticed it was the license number he had been told to look out for.

The deputy said that according to the alarm from the Franklin County sheriff's office, Estep was supposed to have been driving a 1940 Packard. However, the car which passed the deputy was a Mercury.

But White turned around and gave chase immediately with red light and siren both on. In the next three miles of pursuit, White said he fired three times at the speeding car.

As the deputy began to close in on Estep, the suspect suddenly leaped from the car. White estimated the speed of Estep's car at 70 to 75 miles per hour at the time.

Estep landed on his feet but the momentum propelled him over a fence into a cornfield on the Fairfield County side of the road, the deputy added. He said the car continued down the road for 500 feet before crashing into a ditch in Pickaway County.

AS WHITE stopped and prepared to enter the cornfield, he was approached by a farmer close by who had noticed the commotion and had grabbed a rifle from his truck to aid the deputy.

White stationed the farmer at one end of the field and was about to search the field when help arrived. During the chase in the car, White had radioed in for assistance.

First on the scene was Pickaway County Deputy Dwight Radcliff. In quick succession came deputies from Franklin and Pickaway Counties.

White and two Franklin County deputies picked up Estep's trail in the field and tracked it almost three-fourths of the way across the area.

Meanwhile, Deputy Radcliff radioed to headquarters in Circleville requesting aircraft. Two planes from Elsie Airport were dispatched to the scene.

A CALL was sent out for more uniformed men. Franklin County responded with a carload in quick time. Marion Township also provided men.

Soon, some 15 uniformed men entered the field equipped with two walkie-talkies and shotguns. And yet, Estep escaped capture for almost three hours.

On a third sweep through the field, Estep was discovered lying in some weeds by a Franklin County deputy. He was handcuffed and taken into custody.

White said that Estep was wearing a green shirt which blended in with the cornfield. He said Estep apparently kept just a step ahead of the posse in their search.

According to White, Estep, after his capture, kept pleading not to be taken back to the Athens mental hospital from where he had escaped.

Estep had originally been convicted of armed robbery in Ross County and had later been transferred to the mental institution. His address, according to White, is Chillicothe, Route 2.

He was also assistant county agent in Fairfield County, acting county agent in Guernsey County and county agent in Carroll County.

Best graduated from Ohio State University's College of Agriculture in 1935. He is married and has two children, both girls.

He added that he does not believe he will move for the time being until he gets reorganized.

Joe Quelled In Jab Against Panel Member

Democrat Johnson Is Target Of Question Raised By 'Defendant'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate committee wound up its first session inquiring into censure charges against Sen. McCarthy today with the chairman banging the Wisconsin senator into silence and thundering he was "out of order."

McCarthy and his attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, sought to raise the question of whether the committee's vice chairman, Sen. Edwin Johnson (D - Colo.) was quoted truthfully in a Denver Post story of last March. The newspaper said Johnson declared:

"In my opinion, there is not a man among the Democratic leadership of Congress who does not loathe Joe McCarthy."

Chairman Watkins (R - Utah) ruled that Johnson's right to sit on the committee had not been challenged and that even if it was the committee itself could not act upon it. He said the matter was irrelevant to the hearings and that McCarthy and Williams could get from Johnson himself any statement on whether the Post quotes were true or false.

PRIOR TO THE flareup, Johnson had read a statement denying that on March 12 or any other time he had said that he personally "loathed Sen. Joseph McCarthy."

In the 2 1/2-hour session before the recess until tomorrow, the Senate group did little more than lay the groundwork for its hearings.

Earlier, the probing senators refused to throw out one of the charges against him—an accusation based on the senator's refusal to testify before a committee which investigated his financial affairs in 1952.

Williams had moved for dismissal of this charge shortly after the committee opened hearings.

Williams contended the charge was "legally insufficient," but Watkins told him the committee did not agree.

McCarthy himself was permitted to read a statement charging that the senators seeking to censure (Continued on Page Two)

Ike Breaks Labor Pledge, Adlai Says

CHICAGO (AP)—Rapping the Eisenhower administration for its labor-management record, Adlai E. Stevenson said yesterday a Republican campaign promise to revise the Taft-Hartley Act was not kept.

For the Eisenhower administration, he said, this has been a year of "futility, or worse," in meeting problems of labor-management.

"Politics dropped to a new low in connection with the revising of the Taft-Hartley Act following the Republicans' great promises of a change," the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee said.

Addressing some 3,500 delegates at the 25th convention of the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Stevenson said:

"The Republican candidate in that campaign (Eisenhower) said what he called 'union-busting provisions' should be removed. They haven't been. Consider the series of events in which the White House produced some reasonable proposals, then withdrew them under such obvious pressure that Labor's sole Cabinet representative (Martin Durkin) resigned in protest."

Stevenson extended his criticism to include the National Labor Relations Board, saying that Eisenhower had appointed three men who are representative of management and that one has described himself as a "union buster."

Stevenson said they were interpreting the labor laws to destroy advantages which he said had been given to unions during previous Democratic administrations.

Soon, some 15 uniformed men entered the field equipped with two walkie-talkies and shotguns. And yet, Estep escaped capture for almost three hours.

On a third sweep through the field, Estep was discovered lying in some weeds by a Franklin County deputy. He was handcuffed and taken into custody.

White said that Estep was wearing a green shirt which blended in with the cornfield. He said Estep apparently kept just a step ahead of the posse in their search.

According to White, Estep, after his capture, kept pleading not to be taken back to the Athens mental hospital from where he had escaped.

Estep had originally been convicted of armed robbery in Ross County and had later been transferred to the mental institution. His address, according to White, is Chillicothe, Route 2.

Michigan Guard To Patrol Roads

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Gov. G. Mennen Williams has declared a state of emergency in Michigan over the long Labor Day weekend in an effort to reduce an anticipated high traffic death toll.

Williams signed an emergency declaration yesterday giving legal status to his previous act of calling out 700 men of the Michigan National Guard to aid in patrolling state highways.

Michigan led the nation in highway deaths over the Fourth of July weekend with 33 fatalities.

During the emergency period, from noon Friday to noon Tuesday, Sept. 7, intensive air and ground patrols will cover state highways to seek out traffic violators.

Hurricane Roars Toward Boston

NEW YORK (AP)—An early season hurricane roared up the Atlantic Coast today and aimed at populous New England.

By late morning the storm center had passed Long Island and the New York metropolitan area, leaving in its wake a swath of snarled transportation, felled power lines and much small damage.

In Boston, the Weather Bureau urged residents to flee the coastal areas of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts to seek safety from expected furious tides.

Major item on the bill was $11,487 for the 5,493 regular and overtime hours Cleveland police spent on the investigation. Travel costs, hotel rooms, phone and incidental expenses totaled $946.

Larry A. Best, Pickaway County agricultural extension agent, has been recommended for a higher post in the organization.

According to an announcement from the Ohio Extension Service, Best is slated to be district extension supervisor in northwestern Ohio effective Oct. 1.

Best will replace D. B. Robinson who will succeed Otto Croy as assistant director of extension. Robinson's promotion must be approved by the University Board of Trustees.

The local extension advisory committee, made up of 15 county farm families, must also approve of Best's move.

BEST CAME TO Pickaway County as extension agent in 1946. Before that, he taught vocational agriculture at Amesville for three years.

He was also assistant county agent in Fairfield County, acting county agent in Guernsey County and county agent in Carroll County.

Best graduated from Ohio State University's College of Agriculture in 1935. He is married and has two children, both girls.

He added that he does not believe he will move for the time being until he gets reorganized.

Bison Buffalo Citizen Posse Near Canton

CANTON (AP)—Four buffaloes, possibly dreaming of the wide open spaces, were still on the loose today despite efforts of sheriff's deputies, mounted buffalo-boys and a herd of amateur buffalo hunters.

The shaggy, humped bison jumped a fence Saturday at the Tony Diano ranch and except for a brief period have been wandering around the nearby village of Waco ever since, stomping over gardens and yards.

Diano, a contractor who used to operate a circus, says they definitely are "not vicious." But then, again, they are not exactly tame, either.

Mounted hunters rounded up three of them Sunday and got them into a pen. Figuring buffaloes are herd-minded, the huntsmen then sat back waiting for the fourth animal to join the others.

Instead, the three jumped the pen fence and took off. A buffalo isn't much for looks, but he can travel and these did.

Liano normally charges a fee for looking at his collection of animals. And now the public has joined in the chase.

The four bison are part of a herd of 18 Diano once had. The others died.

Democrat Johnson Is Target Of Question Raised By 'Defendant'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate committee wound up its first session inquiring into censure charges against Sen. McCarthy today with the chairman banging the Wisconsin senator into silence and thundering he was "out of order."

McCarthy and his attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, sought to raise the question of whether the committee's vice chairman, Sen. Edwin Johnson (D-Colo.) was quoted truthfully in a Denver Post story of last March. The newspaper said Johnson declared:

"In my opinion, there is not a man among the Democratic leadership of Congress who does not loathe Joe McCarthy."

Chairman Watkins (R-Utah) ruled that Johnson's right to sit on the committee had not been challenged and that even if it was the committee itself could not act upon it. He said the matter was irrelevant to the hearings and that McCarthy and Williams could get from Johnson himself any statement on whether the Post quotes were true or false.

PRIOR TO THE flareup, Johnson had read a statement denying that on March 12 or any other time he had said that he personally "loathed Sen. Joseph McCarthy."

In the 2½-hour session before the recess until tomorrow, the Senate group did little more than lay the groundwork for its hearings.

Earlier, the probing senators refused to throw out one of the charges against him—an accusation based on the senator's refusal to testify before a committee which investigated his financial affairs in 1952.

Williams had moved for dismissal of this charge shortly after the committee opened hearings.

Williams contended the charge was "legally insufficient," but Watkins told him the committee did not agree.

him are "affected by ulterior, political considerations."

Watkins let McCarthy read it, but told him "most of it is not relevant to the issues."

The chairman commented too that McCarthy's statement was unsworn and was "not testimony."

AS THIS SENATE committee began its "trial," another prepared to make public tomorrow its findings on McCarthy's row with Army officials, subject of 36 days of hearings earlier this year.

The Detroit News said today that the Republican majority on the committee has decided both McCarthy and Army Secretary Stevens were "at fault."

The News said the majority "straddles the question of whether McCarthy or Stevens was the more guilty."

WHILE JOINING three Republican colleagues in the majority report, the News said Sen. Potter (R-Mich) issued a separate report which was much more critical of both Stevens and McCarthy.

The committee had three Democrats, who have prepared a minority report.

The new investigation was ordered by the Senate to look into 46 specific charges aimed at McCarthy by three other senators and to explore a censure resolution offered by Sen. Flanders (R-Vt).

First accusation, in which Senators Flanders, Fulbright (D-Ark) and Morse (R-Ore) all have joined, declares that McCarthy displayed "contempt of the Senate," or of its Senate Privileges and Elections subcommittee or of both, by not answering in a 1952 investigation the subcommittee's questions about the propriety of some of his financial dealings.

Watkins said the subcommittee would develop all of the evidence possible about the "contempt" charge and four other categories embracing 10 other related or partly overlapping accusations before McCarthy is called to testify.

These categories, in the order in which they will be taken up, allege that McCarthy encouraged public servants to violate the law and their superiors' orders by giving him secret information; that he received and used some secret FBI information dealing with national security; that he has been abusive and slurring toward some fellow senators; and that he abused Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker when Zwicker was a witness before his subcommittee.

Drunk Ignores Second Chance; Jailed After Fast Reappearance

A Circleville resident, who has been a fairly common "visitor" to the jail, ignored the warning given him by Municipal Court and will now have the jail as his permanent home for the next 13 months.

James Toles appeared before acting city judge Emmett Crist Saturday on an off repeated accusation—being drunk and disorderly. Judge Crist sentenced him to a year in jail and fined him the costs.

However, the judge suspended the sentence on Toles' "good behavior" with a reminder of what has happened recently to others who have taken advantage of a "second chance."

But Toles' memory was apparently short. For he was back before the judge Monday morning. Judge Crist had promised to "throw the book" at Toles if he reappeared. And he did.

AS A RESULT, Toles subscribed for himself the year in jail plus an additional 30 days and $50 and cost for the second appearance. He joins a steadily growing number of residents who have ignored the chance given them by the city court.

West Powers Reeling As EDC Is Killed

PARIS (P)—The Western coalition against communism reeled under France's crushing rejection of the European army plan, but Allied leaders rushed forward new rescue plans.

By a 319-264 vote the French National Assembly voted last night to postpone debate indefinitely on the six-nation European Defense Community Treaty, signed 27 months ago after long negotiation to add German soldiers to Western military strength.

The vote on the procedural motion was a clear-cut death blow to the plan which France herself originally proposed. It would have joined 12 German divisions in an internationally controlled force with French troops and those of Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

For three years EDC had been a keystone of Western defense policy. President Eisenhower termed the French vote a "serious setback" to the free world. Moscow's Communist party organ Pravda was jubilant.

There were sad and troubled French legislators today who said now no one could be sure whether West Germany could be kept oriented to the Allied side with a fighting force the North Atlantic command has been seeking.

Only limited steps can be taken immediately unless the United States and Britain take a bold decision to go ahead without France.

Many of the same French deputies who voted down the plan to put German soldiers into a European army have declared they would vote also against any immediate rearming of West Germany, even if she were to pledge her troops to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Many deputies who supported the European army swore to vote against German rearmament without the controls EDC would have provided.

American diplomats and military leaders here did not take too seriously the unofficial talk heard in the United States that America and Britain might go ahead alone with the rearming of Germany if France slowed the pace.

But sources here were aware that American vexation already has been reflected in congressional curbs put both on the quantity of money voted for Europe and the manner in which it could be spent.

With the idea for a centrally controlled European army derailed, American, British, West German and French officials prepared to find a replacement as quickly as possible.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said that talks would be arranged immediately to give Germany her independence, which up to now has been dependent on creation of the European army.

French Premier Pierre Mendes-France already has said he would go along with the speedy restoration of sovereignty to West Germany, but he has emphasized that this does not include rearmament.

him are "affected by ulterior, political considerations."

Watkins let McCarthy read it, but told him "most of it is not relevant to the issues."

The chairman commented too that McCarthy's statement was unwarranted and was "not testimony."

AS THIS SENATE committee began its "trial," another prepared to make public tomorrow its findings on McCarthy's row with Army officials, subject of 36 days of hearings earlier this year.

The Detroit News said today that the Republican majority on the committee has decided both McCarthy and Army Secretary Stevens were "at fault."

The News said the majority "straddles the question of whether McCarthy or Stevens was the more guilty."

WHILE JOINING three Republican colleagues in the majority report, the News said Sen. Potter (R-Mich.) issued a separate report which was much more critical of both Stevens and McCarthy.

The committee had three Democrats, who have prepared a minority report.

The new investigation was ordered by the Senate to look into 46 specific charges aimed at McCarthy by three other senators and to explore a censure resolution offered by Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.).

First accusation, in which Senators Flanders, Fulbright (D-Ark) and Morse (R-Ore) all have joined, declares that McCarthy displayed "contempt of the Senate," or of its Senate Privileges and Elections subcommittee or of both, by not answering in a 1952 investigation the subcommittee's questions about the propriety of some of his financial dealings.

Watkins said the subcommittee would develop all of the evidence possible about the "contempt" charge and four other categories embracing 10 other related or partly overlapping accusations before McCarthy is called to testify.

These categories, in the order in which they will be taken up, allege that McCarthy encouraged public servants to violate the law and their superiors' orders by giving him secret information; that he received and used some secret FBI information dealing with national security; that he has been abusive and slurring toward some fellow senators; and that he abused Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker when Zwicker was a witness before his subcommittee.

Drunk Ignores Second Chance; Jailed After Fast Reappearance

A Circleville resident, who has been a fairly common "visitor" to the jail, ignored the warning given him by Municipal Court and will now have the jail as his permanent home for the next 13 months.

James Toles appeared before acting city judge Emmett Crist Saturday on an oft repeated accusation—being drunk and disorderly. Judge Crist sentenced him to a year in jail and fined him the costs.

However, the judge suspended the sentence on Toles' "good behavior" with a reminder of what has happened recently to others who have taken advantage of a "second chance."

But Toles' memory was apparently short. For he was back before the judge Monday morning. Judge Crist had promised to "throw the book" at Toles if he reappeared. And he did.

AS A RESULT, Toles subscribed for himself the year in jail plus an additional 30 days and $50 and cost for the second appearance. He joins a steadily growing number of residents who have ignored the chance given them by the city court.

Devotion To God Proclaimed Only Weapon Against Fears

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—A summing-up message from the World Council of Churches today proclaimed "to all who will listen" that only devotion to God can conquer the fears and "powers of evil" that plague the earth.

In its keynote message, the council's historic assembly declared that mankind's search for freedom is doomed to defeat unless man "turn from our way to God's way."

"Nothing other than God can ever satisfy the heart of man," the message said. "Forgetting this, man becomes his own enemy. He seeks justice, but creates oppression."

"He wants peace but drifts toward war. His very mastery of nature threatens him with ruin. Whether he acknowledges it or not, he stands under the judgment of God and under the shadow of death."

The 1,000-word message, counted the cardinal document of the 17-day world Christian gathering, came as the assembly moved toward its final sessions today.

It declared that God, in Jesus Christ, is "the hope of the world." And it said that "only at the cross of Christ" can men find the answer to the "fear and distrust which at present divide our world."

"It is there that Christians must pray daily for their enemies," the message said. "It is there that we must seek deliverance from self-righteousness, impatience and fear."

"And those who know that Christ is risen should have the courage to expect new power to break through every human barrier."

The message affirmed the determination of the council's 163 denominations in 48 nations to seek greater unity to strengthen their faith. It said:

"We enter now upon a second stage. To stay together is not enough. We must go forward. As we learn more of our unity in Christ, it becomes the more intolerable that we should be divided."

'Bandwagon' Visits City Area Tuesday During Brief Stop

The Eisenhower "Bandwagon," a large 32-foot red, white and blue tractor trailer combination paid a brief visit to Circleville Tuesday morning.

The "Bandwagon," brought into Ohio by Republican Congressman George Bender, was to call attention to Bender's try for the U. S. Senate.

Also, Leo Blackburn, nominee for Congress from Ohio, accompanied the brief tour through the city.

A number of attractive young ladies brought along campaign buttons and distributed them throughout the area.

THE ENTIRE project follows President Eisenhower's announced intention of assisting those Congressional candidates who supported his program in the 83rd Congress.

According to an announcement from Republican Party officials, the President is anxious to have Bender elected to the Senate and Blackburn to Congress.

West Powers Reeling As EDC Is Killed

French Strike Fatal Blow In Voting To Disregard Program

PARIS (AP)—The Western coalition against communism reeled under France's crushing rejection of the European army plan, but Allied leaders rushed forward new rescue plans.

By a 319-264 vote the French National Assembly voted last night to postpone debate indefinitely on the six-nation European Defense Community Treaty, signed 27 months ago after long negotiation to add German soldiers to Western military strength.

The vote on the procedural motion was a clear-cut death blow to the plan which France herself originally proposed. It would have joined 12 German divisions in an internationally controlled force with French troops and those of Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

For three years EDC had been a keystone of Western defense policy. President Eisenhower termed the French vote a "serious setback" to the free world. Moscow's Communist party organ Pravda was jubilant.

THERE WERE sad and troubled French legislators today who said now no one could be sure whether West Germany could be kept oriented to the Allied side with a fighting force the North Atlantic command has been seeking.

Only limited steps can be taken immediately unless the United States and Britain take a bold decision to go ahead without France.

Many of the same French deputies who voted down the plan to put German soldiers into a European army have declared they would vote also against any immediate rearming of West Germany, even if she were to pledge her troops to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Many deputies who supported the European army swore to vote against German rearmament without the controls EDC would have provided.

American diplomats and military leaders here did not take too seriously the unofficial talk heard in the United States that America and Britain might go ahead alone with the rearming of Germany if France slowed the pace.

But sources here were aware that American vexation already has been reflected in congressional curbs put both on the quantity of money voted for Europe and the manner in which it could be spent.

With the idea for a centrally controlled European army derailed, American, British, West German and French officials prepared to find a replacement as quickly as possible.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said that talks would be arranged immediately to give Germany her independence, which up to now has been dependent on creation of the European army.

French Premier Pierre Mendes-France already has said he would go along with the speedy restoration of sovereignty to West Germany, but he has emphasized that this does not include rearmament.

Politicians To Make Like Economists

Experts To Take Back Seat As Vote-Chasers Expound On U.S. Status

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Economists will take a back seat in the next two months in the discussion of the nation's economy. Politicians' views on the state of business will top the headlines.

The predictions of the economists and business executives won't be nearly as exciting. And this is doubly so because just now there is an unusual degree of agreement among them. It's hard to find many who view with alarm. It's equally hard to find many who predict a strong upturn in September and October.

The majority believes the changes will be largely seasonal.

The quiet summer, without any startling drops and without any signs of a strong pickup, starts business into the fall season with conditions fairly well in hand but nothing in the immediate future promising much more than a nudge—in the view of most economists and business executives who are talking.

Demand for goods stays good, but unexciting. This demand, coupled with production cutbacks, has enabled manufacturers to bring their inventories down to a level more than two billion dollars below a year ago. Some think the cuts have about run their course now.

Labor unrest causes some concern for the course of business this fall. A rash of strikes has spread here and there in industry. Settlements have mostly boosted production costs at a time when businessmen have been trying hard to hold them down and keep from losing customers by hiking prices.

Employment holds pretty steady. The labor department reports that the filing of new claims for jobless pay has dropped to the lowest level of the year.

But in at least one industry the next month or so may be rugged. Auto model change-overs are likely to idle one-fourth of the auto workers in Michigan in the next two months, that state's employment security commission believes.

Auto sales dropped in July after a spurt in June, and sales to dealers in the first seven months of the year ran 11 per cent below those in the same period of 1953.

Against this rather gloom background, however, are: 1. The sales records of the two leading auto makers, which went against the trend; and 2. The general view that when the new models start rolling from the production lines in November and December, a new and better sales day will dawn.

Steel makers have mostly given up their earlier hopes that September would see a marked recovery from their summer slump. Some now set the date for October, when they think the auto makers will have to start buying again for their new models.

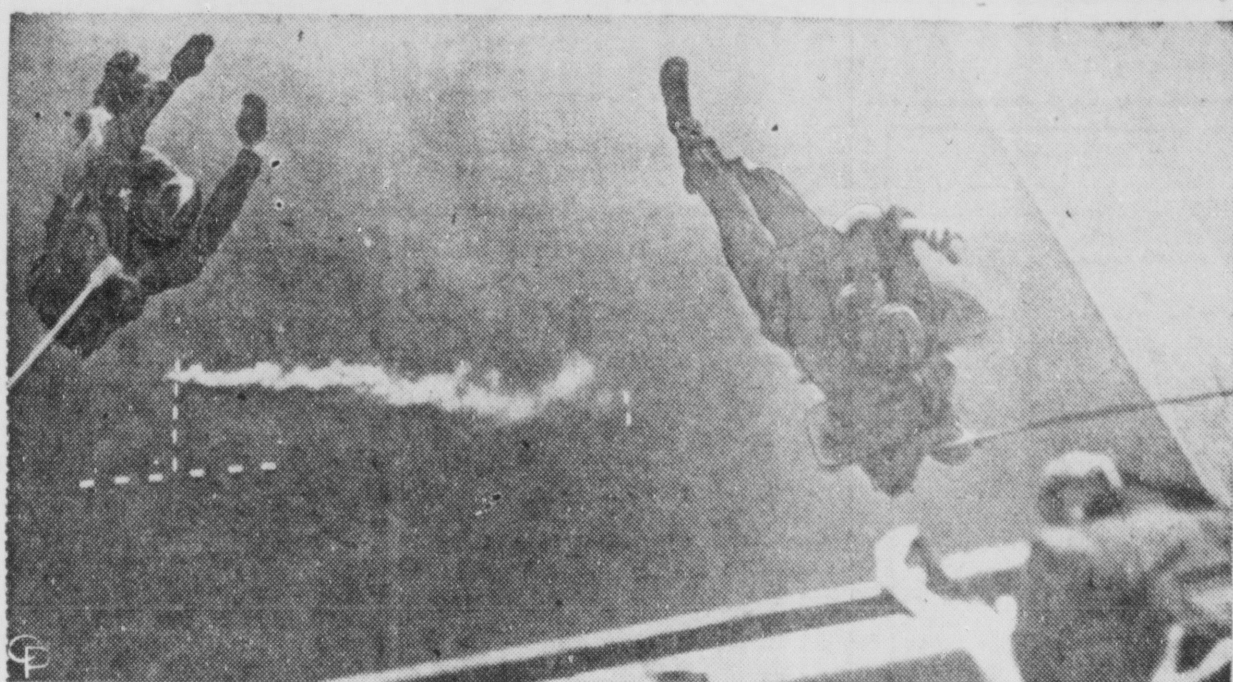

Military orders are beginning to flow in increased volume as the government gives business a nudge.

But Washington also hands out a few shivers. One is the report that some of the many mergers which have recently made the most interesting business news are getting a close look from the justice department.

Stock market jitters also worry businessmen. Last week's hesitancy in the 11-month old bull market has many wondering if the time for the bears to have at least a short inning at bat is near at hand.

And in the financial marts they note a couple of strange things. Bank loans to business aren't rising as they should at this time of year. But in the face of this lack of demand, interest rates are showing a tendency to firm, instead of easing further.

A crowd estimated at 34,000 attended yesterday's session.

A sheep shearing contest will be held in the sheep barn area and an all-day musical program got underway in the music hall.

Harness racing continued in the grandstand oval at 2 p. m. with the night's horse show starting at 7:30 p. m. in the coliseum.

Some junior fair winners yesterday included Larry Evans of Gallopis, who showed the champion female Angus in the 4-H cattle contest, and Stan Augustus of Rt. 3, New Carlisle, who took similar honors in the FFA contest.

Daytonian Rides Detroit Flagpole

DETROIT (AP)—Richard "Dixie" Blandy of Dayton, Ohio, calmly shifted from one foot to another today atop a 50 foot flagpole at the Michigan State Fairgrounds.

Blandy, 52, a former flagpole painter, climbed up on the pole yesterday. He stands on a small two foot square platform and says he will not come down for at least eight days. He was hired to publicize the state fair which opens Friday.

"I'll stay on top of the pole until my feet swell so badly I can't take it any more," Blandy says. "then I'll come down and go to a hospital for treatment."

Statewide Polio Report Declines

COLUMBUS (AP)—Fewer new polio cases were reported throughout the state last week than the week before, Dr. Ralph Dwork, acting health director, says.

Some 119 new cases last week bring the state total to 797. The week before, 156 new cases were reported.

Two of the new cases are in Richland County and seven in Montgomery County, where groups of school children are taking part in a nationwide test of the new Salk polio vaccine. Dr. Dwork said his figures do not show whether any study group children contracted polio last week. Half the children in the test received shots of the vaccine and half got injections of an inert control liquid.

Millwrights Get Pay Boost

CINCINNATI (AP)—Some 500 AFL millwrights working in Southern Ohio got a 15-cent-an-hour pay increase yesterday.

Their scale of $3.17½ an hour will be augmented by another 5 cents Dec. 1.

Jesse A. Higgins, manager of the Millwright Contractors Assn., and Arvil Linkenfelter, business representatives of the Millwright Local 1454, said the increase would be retroactive to June 1.

The millwrights install machinery and conveyors. About half of the local's members are employed in Greater Cincinnati and the remainder on the Atomic Energy Commission project, Waverly.

Young Bachelor Who Has Yacht Still Cannot Find The Right Girl

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Could there really be anything wrong with American girls?

Whenever such doubts assailed me in the past, I have firmly repressed them, feeling they must reflect a personal defect in my character that makes me unable to appreciate feminine perfection. After all, if a girl weren't perfect, wouldn't she be the first to admit it?

Well, today I am full of new doubts. I just ran into a young bachelor who owns a yacht and still can't find the right girl to make first mate.

"Sure, I'd like to get married," said David Haft. "Every bachelor says he is happy, but every bachelor knows it isn't true. I just haven't been able to find a girl who would make the kind of wife I want."

Of course, Dave isn't without faults. He is an amateur sculptor, he likes to quote poetry, and his yacht, after all, is only 40 feet long. And the girl of his choice might have to learn to enjoy water skiing.

But these minor flaws are balanced by certain homely virtues. Dave, who spent 500 combat hours flying bombers in the Pacific theater in World War II and is not unhandsome in an Air Force sort of way, now pilots his own Cadillac convertible. He has a luxurious East Side apartment staffed with a maid and butler, and the butler can cook. He also is president of a major cloak and suit firm, and in four years has built up its business to $12 million a year.

You'd think a guy like that would be the target of a new feminine gold rush. Well, he is. That's the trouble.

"Too many girls today simply want to use a man as a stepping stone for a career—they aren't interested in a man for himself alone," said Dave. Glamor girls hold no particular appeal for him, as he is surrounded in his work every day by from 16 to 30 beautiful clothes models.

Full of the wisdom and cynicism of his 31 years, Haft has divided American girls into four classes.

"First, there is the professional career type," he said. "They are usually actresses or models, and they have a tremendous ego problem. They are so dependent upon their physical charms they have to be constantly reassured they are as beautiful as ever."

And the praise of their husband isn't enough. They have to get outside opinions from other men. Even though she insists this is only a game, it is more than a man wants to put up with.

"Then there are the business career girls. They use their home only to supplement their career. They may love a husband dearly, but they are too involved in their own problems to show the right kind of interest in him."

"The third type is the girls who do nothing. You find lots of them in all classes, single or married. They are lady leeches, trading on the art of being feminine. But they tend to destroy any male who gets involved with them, because they offer nothing in return—not even stimulating conversation."

And the fourth type "She is the real homemaker," said Dave. "She is basically interested in getting a husband rather than a glamor career. She is emotionally and physically adjusted to being what she wants to be—a real housewife."

"But most girls like that can be found now only in the country or the small towns. Life in a big city is the unhappiest preparation in the world for anybody who wants a peaceful marriage."

I asked Dave why he didn't jump in his Cadillac and start touring the small towns.

"It would take luck, too, to find her," he said. "So far, I guess, I've been pretty selfish myself—putting my career first. That doesn't work either. A man, like a woman, has to put his home ahead of his career, if it comes to a final choice."

Meanwhile, Dave is not without consolation while he waits for the right girl. He has a parrot.

Early symbol of chivalry was a square flag.

PERSONNEL THE PROBLEM

AT THE ANNUAL Air Force Association convention held at Omaha recently it was brought out that the U. S. Air Force will soon be completely jet powered, and that Uncle Sam's planes now are flying higher, faster and farther, and have established new records for both altitude and distance. The old altitude record of 82,255 feet, and the speed record of 1,650 miles an hour, both have been broken, according to official announcements made at the convention.

Harold E. Talbott, Secretary of the U. S. Air Force, told the convention there was no great concern over improved equipment to match that of Russia. The real problem, he said, continues to be manpower. Billions are being spent for equipment, Talbott told the gathering, and only nickels for personnel.

It takes five years to train a triple-rated pilot of a B-47 jet bomber and it costs the taxpayers $808,000, he declared. Every time a skilled pilot leaves the service it costs the nation a fraction of its security.

Secretary Talbott points out that the Air Force has been given the major job of protecting the country against attack. "This is a tremendous job," he declares. "It means a day and night watch for the rest of our lives. Only the most skilled men can do it. Currently we are losing more than $2 billion a year in trained airmen."

What is needed, Talbott declares, is less paper work and more pay for the men who have been given the job of guarding the nation.

NEW TROUBLE SPOT

THE CRISIS in Brazil, accentuated as it is by the suicide of President Vargas, is certain to have consequences which will be felt far beyond the limits of Brazil itself. The whole Western Hemisphere has a new trouble spot on its hands.

Trouble south of the Rio Grande always seems to be contagious. The United States must be on guard against developments of a similar nature in other Latin-American countries.

The affair has already given the Communists the opportunity—which they have quickly seized—to stage violent anti-American demonstrations and create the impression that the United States is responsible for Brazil's troubles. Unfortunately the death letter of President Vargas serves to add strength to their propaganda.

Dear Harold:

It is a long time since we have seen each other. In former days, when your hopes were high that you would guide this nation, I must admit that I thought that it might be best for our friend, Bob Taft, to take over because he would clarify the position of our party by making it a distinctively conservative element in American life.

Most Americans are basically conservative and require a political vehicle to express their views. This, of course, is lacking today and that is why there is so much intellectual confusion. Bob would have been good for the United States; unfortunately he passed away and there is no advantage in defying him. Dead gods are not of more value than a totem pole.

But this letter is not a polemic on deities. Rather it is an appeal for money. You are giving so much away in so many countries for so many reasons, that I would like to get some of it. Perhaps the law says that you are permitted only to give money to foreigners; well, my grandparents on both sides were foreigners. Maybe that would help you to stretch a point.

You see, I am an independent merchant who sells the spoken and written word. I might be regarded as a very handsomely paid person, earning more than Andrew Carnegie dreamed possible when he emerged into the shekels.

However, I have no tricks at my disposal. I am paid by check which means that every cent is accounted for. I can stash no cash in a shoebox under the bed, except a few dollars for safety should an atom bomb fall on New York when I am on my farm. If I happen to be in New York at the time, it will, of course, make no difference, as everything will go, including my collection of jade buckles which survived many centuries of civil war.

Each year I make out my income tax, with some technical assistance, and after I pay it, my earnings shrivel to reality. As an independent merchant, I have office and travelling expenses which a kindly government acknowledges as proper business expenditures and which it permits me to deduct from gross earnings.

So the gross is a phantasmagoria. It is a momentary arithmetical thrill. When from the so-called net, the Federal and State taxes are deducted, the final net is not so pretty. One can manage, but the distance between the gross and the net is considerable.

Editor's Note: While Ray Tucker is on vacation there will be guest columns by several prominent newspaper editors. Today's column is by William H. Heath, editor of the Haverhill (Mass.) Gazette.

Massachusetts Republicans are strangely confident that, at the November election, they will contribute to an increase in their party's congressional strength.

Such confidence among Republicans anywhere is strange, because it is established on the assumption that political experience is destined to be different this year. Not within the memory of a politician now alive has the party in power in Washington improved its congressional position at a midterm election. This confidence is especially strange in Massachusetts, which voted Democratic in presidential elections from the era of Calvin Coolidge to the rise of Dwight Eisenhower.

The consistent devotion to the Democratic ticket is easily explained. The policies and practices of the New Deal were powerful attractions to the citizens of a state that long had been proud of its liberal social legislation. Massachusetts voters were accustomed to centralization of political authority. Thousands upon thousands were members of trade unions. Today it is hard to tell whether the Democratic party in Massachusetts is a wing of the AFL and CIO or vice versa.

INDEPENDENT—In this situation the wonder is that the Republicans ever elect anybody. They do, because of the independent Massachusetts voters, who are sensitive to issues and personalities, numerous to decide any election, and determined not to let either party get the idea it has a 100-year lease on power. In 1952, Massachusetts Republicans delivered comeuppance on both state and national fronts. Apparently fed up with Paul A. Dever's free-spending, welfare state policies, they enabled former Congressman Christian Herter to win the governorship. Apparently impressed by Eisenhower's high character and nobility of purpose as an antidote to lax administration and corruption of purpose as an antidote to lax administration and corruption of the Truman Administration, they enabled the Republicans to win the state in a presidential election for the first time since 1924. Eisenhower's margin of victory was small enough clearly to indicate that no other Republican could have achieved it.

Re-ELECTION—Herter is a good governor, his re-election is looked for, and he is one reason for Republican confidence. Another is the record of the 83rd Congress which, the Republicans think, endows them with persuasive campaign material. Principal reason for their confidence is the opinion that Eisenhower continues to be popular with the rank and file. A fourth reason, which gets little attention, is the layout of congressional districts, of which there are 14. Eight are represented by Republicans. This is the case because legislatures, during the years of Massachusetts devotion to Democratic Presidents and governors generally have been Republican, with the result that the boundaries of congressional districts continue to conform to Republican aspirations rather than to statewide political opinion.

Best of all these pictures that have appeared to date, that of the President and Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, directed attention to the most important Massachusetts contest. It is also the one that the Republicans seem to have the best chance to win.

OPPONENT—Saltonstall's opponent will be Foster Furcolo, who formerly held the seat in Congress now occupied by Representative Boland. Furcolo chose to get elected state treasurer two years ago to continuing in Congress. He is the choice of the pre-primary party convention to oppose Saltonstall and has no serious opposition in the Sept. 14 primary.

Furcolo is a resident of the western part of the state and assured of the support of the other-than-Boston section of the party. He is of Italian descent and presumably will attract voters who are affected by racial price. He is a democratic liberal and should therefore attract liberal support.

But a Yankee and an Irishman long have represented Massachusetts in the Senate. For 26 years they were David I. Walsh and some Yankee. Now they are Saltonstall and Kennedy. The Irish are not ready to put an Italian in a seat long occupied by a son of Erin or a descendant of the Mayflower's cargo of blue bloods.

This is not a conclusion reached by logical processes. It is accomplished by an intuitive leap, something a Yankee learns to do through long association with the Irish, who think with their hearts more frequently than with their heads.

This irrational situation, as a factor in the Saltonstall-Furcolo contest, indicates that, in this instance, Republican confidence is not so strange as it seems.

DIET AND HEALTH

Causes of Abnormal Deposits of Calcium

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE teeth and bones are the normal location of most of the calcium within the body. However, this vital mineral can locate itself in abnormal parts, such as the muscular tissue or the organs of the body. Such abnormal location is most often seen in persons who take excessive amounts of alkali and calcium-containing products.

Self-Treated People

Ulcer sufferers are usually on this type of diet. Many of these people try to treat their ulcers without the supervision of a physician. However, they fail to realize that there are enough drugs for the management of ulcers without the necessity of taking excesses of calcium.

There may also be other causes for these abnormal calcium deposits in the body.

Some Other Causes

They may be due to an over-dosage of vitamin D. They may be caused by some growth of the parathyroid glands, the neck glands which have as their duty the proper utilization of calcium. These deposits are also quite common among young people with severe kidney diseases. Individuals who have had their arms or legs immobilized for long periods of time may also have calcium where it does not belong.

Affects Kidneys

The calcium may deposit itself in any of the body organs, but it does seem to have a special predilection toward the kidneys. In many instances, it interferes with the proper action of the kidneys, causing uremic poisoning.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Q. Mrs. H.: What else will cause dizziness besides heart trouble?
A. Answer: Poor circulation, sinus trouble or any difficulty with the inner ear may be responsible. Anemia is also a very common cause.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

RUSSELL and the captain were just finishing as we came in the dining saloon. Russell stopped for a moment, blew on a raw red fist and winked at me.

"You'll be bored to hear that Ed and Bebe left safely. Nobody stopped them here, anyway. I promised to send their luggage to general delivery, Chicago. They didn't dare take anything with them."

I said that was fine. I introduced Grodnik to Capt. Jellicoe and then we sat down.

"Steak's always fine here, captain," I said, knowing Grodnik's weakness. I handed him the menu. Lunch took us more than an hour. Grodnik was hungry and I didn't try to hurry him. I couldn't think of what to do next. If I had held Boltinck and turned him over to the local cops, maybe they would have let me tag along with their investigation. But I had traded Boltinck for an almost useless tip that didn't seem helpful just now. "A trick," Boltinck had said, "not a place to meet, but something tricky." And that was no lie. I sat back and lit a cigarette.

"Anything working in your brain, captain?"

"Not when I'm eating," Grodnik said serenely.

"Do you think the FBI would let us go along if they've got a lead?"

"No chance," Grodnik said. "The city cops won't freeze me out, though they won't go out of their way to help me any. But the feds are out."

"That's what I figured. Well, we've got Boltinck's tip. Stewart and his girl are meeting in New Orleans. But not at a place. No specific rendezvous. But they have a plan that satisfies them. They're sure it will work. So what does that mean?"

He said: "We know it's New Orleans at least. So we know more than the cops or the FBI. We know they're needed for Brazil. Everything out of here will be searched right down to the rivets—trains, planes, ships, the works. That gives us a good chance. But that doesn't help you a bit, does it?"

"Not a bit," I agreed. "Not if the FBI nabs him when I'm not around. Suppose Stewart and his girl... what's her name again?"

"Mary McVicker," Grodnik said. "Suppose they... My voice dwindled to silence as I stared at the doorway. There was a terrific bearded pirate in a wide torn hat, floppy breeches, buckled shoes and a ripped jersey. I rose half out of my chair before I spotted the bandage poking out from under the hat. "What the heck are you?"

"Dominique You, me," Russell grunted. He crossed his arms, showing fake tattoos on both forearms. A pair of silver-bound dueling pistols stuck out from a scarlet sash.

"Dominique you-me," I parroted. "You're off your chump."

"Not you-me, you jerk," Russell grinned. "Just you. Old Dominique. You was Jean LaFitte's right-hand man. This is my Mardi Gras get-up. Pretty fierce, eh?"

Grodnik stared at me blankly. "It's terrific," I said. "You a member of one of the parading outfits?"

"One of the Crews? Oh, no. That's just for the local residents. No, this is for Masking Day. Everybody wears something then. I think I'll be spectacular, no?"

"You'll be spectacular, yes," I agreed. "You mean everybody does that here? Not just a chosen few?"

"Everybody. Even you, I'll bet." "Sure. Just get me a high paper hat. I'll be right in character."

"Feeling like a dunce, are you? Me, I feel wonderful. I hung a few loveholes on Boltinck's chops and I feel fine. Well, I'm off to astound the captain. I'll see you..."

"Hey," I yelled. "When is this Masking Day?"

"Mardi Gras, dope. Fat Tuesday."

Russell prowled out of the saloon, pausing to leap wildly at a busy steward. I lifted an eyebrow at Grodnik.

"What do you think?"

"Masking Day. If Russell is right, everybody will be running around in some zany getup. Masks. What a cover for a man who wants to duck the cops."

"Could be," Grodnik said placidly. He swallowed and poured another cup of coffee. Then he leaned back and unwrapped a cheap cigar. "You go around pulling off masks and somebody's going to pull off your ears."

"But suppose Stewart and his girl... My mouth hung wide and dropped even more. Just the thin edge of a chance, the wild, ungodly chance. But it could be. Sure it could."

"You sick?" Grodnik asked calmly.

"I had a thought," I said stupidly. "Knocked me over. How long since you did any leg-work, captain?"

"Too long."

"I've got an idea. I'll have to check. You coming?"

Grodnik moved with no hesitation. He picked up his gray felt from a chair, placed it squarely on his head using both hands.

We got off the boat quickly. Nobody tried to stop us, but there were three hard-eyed young men who looked us over thoughtfully as we climbed the cobble embankment.

"Wait a minute," I said. I walked over to a glass telephone booth set against a warehouse wall and lifted the directory. I flipped to the classified section, found the listing I wanted and ripped the page out. Then I rejoined Grodnik and we signalled a taxi.

"What's the pitch?" he growled.

I showed him the yellow page, pointing my finger at the thick black type that read: "Costumes, Rental."

"Stewart?" Grodnik asked. "Stewart," I said.

Grodnik and I set out to see every New Orleans dealer in rented costumes, to check all records and addresses that had been given by renters. It would have been a week-long chore if we'd gone down the list alphabetically, but our driver was a tower of strength. He organized the dealers by areas, eliminating the smaller ones who worked the outlying districts. There were still a lot of them, but not too many. We covered them in four hours of hard sweating and the driver's eyes began to shine as he watched the meter.

We climbed narrow, wobbly stairs to third-floor offices, walked endless miles through warehouses to reach the costume shop which was always far in the back. Twice we found big Canal St. shops with pleasant ground-floor units. But most of them were in the cheap rent spots, as close to the downtown area as they could afford. I took four alone. Grodnik's feet had begun to give him sharp reminders of his days as a foot-slogging patrolman.

"So what have we got?" he asked dourly when I got in.

"Fourteen possibilities," I said wearily. I looked at my watch. Five-thirty now, a bad time to find people at home. "Let's skip all the hotel addresses and try the others. That leaves..." I ran my pencil down the scrawled sheet, ticking off the names of costume renters I had taken from the shop records. "...uh... six. I guess they'll turn out to be local residents, but we'd better try them and leave the hotel people till later tonight."

I leaned forward to give the first address to the driver.

He nodded. "That's down in the Quarter, the Vieux Carre, as they say. Just a step. Say, you fellows cops?"

"No," I said flatly.

"Well, I was wondering," he muttered. "We got better than 25 bucks on the meter now, and I was wondering..."

"Okay," I got out my wallet, slid some bills out and gave him $20. "That hold you?"

It held him. Grodnik's feet hurt, my shoulder ached, and I felt disgusted with my bright idea by now. But our driver was having a good day.

In 1952, Massachusetts Republicans delivered comeuppance on both state and national fronts. Apparently fed up with Paul A. Dever's free-spending, welfare state policies, they enabled former Congressman Christian Herter to win the governorship. Apparently impressed by Eisenhower's high character and nobility of purpose as an antidote to lax administration and corruption of purpose as an antidote to lax administration and corruption of the Truman Administration, they enabled the Republicans to win the state in a presidential election for the first time since 1924. Eisenhower's margin of victory was small enough clearly to indicate that no other Republican could have achieved it.

Re-ELECTION — Herter is a good governor, his re-election is looked for, and he is one reason for Republican confidence. Another is the record of the 83rd Congress which, the Republicans think, endows them with persuasive campaign material. Principal reason for their confidence is the opinion that Eisenhower continues to be popular with the rank and file. A fourth reason, which gets little attention, is the layout of congressional districts, of which there are 14. Eight are represented by Republicans. This is the case because legislatures, during the years of Massachusetts devotion to Democratic Presidents and governors generally have been Republican, with the result that the boundaries of congressional districts continue to conform to Republican aspirations rather than to statewide political opinion.

Best of all these pictures that have appeared to date that of the President and Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, directed attention to the most important Massachusetts contest. It is also the one that the Republicans seem to have the best chance to win.

OPPONENT — Saltonstall's opponent will be Foster Furcolo, who formerly held the seat in Congress now occupied by Representative Boland. Furcolo chose to get elected state treas-

DIET AND HEALTH

Causes of Abnormal Deposits of Calcium

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE teeth and bones are the normal location of most of the calcium within the body. However, this vital mineral can locate itself in abnormal parts, such as the muscular tissue or the organs of the body. Such abnormal location is most often seen in persons who take excessive amounts of alkali and calcium-containing products.

Self-Treated People

Ulcer sufferers are usually on this type of diet. Many of these people try to treat their ulcers without the supervision of a physician. However, they fail to realize that there are enough drugs for the management of ulcers without the necessity of taking excesses of calcium. There may also be other causes for these abnormal calcium deposits in the body.

Some Other Causes

They may be due to an over-dosage of vitamin D. They may be caused by some growth of the parathyroid glands, the neck glands which have as their duty the proper utilization of calcium. These deposits are also quite common among young people with severe kidney diseases. Individuals who have had their arms or legs immobilized for long periods of time may also have calcium where it does not belong.

Affects Kidneys

The calcium may deposit itself in any of the body organs, but it does seem to have a special predisposition toward the kidneys. In many instances, it interferes with the proper action of the kidneys, causing uremic poisoning.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. H.: What else will cause dizziness besides heart trouble?
Answer: Poor circulation, sinus trouble or any difficulty with the inner ear may be responsible. Anemia is also a very common cause.

urer two years ago to continuing in Congress. He is the choice of the pre-primary party convention to oppose Saltonstall and has no serious opposition in the Sept. 14 primary.

Furcolo is a resident of the western part of the state and assured of the support of the other-than-Boston section of the party. He is of Italian descent and presumably will attract voters who are affected by racial price. He is a democratic liberal and should therefore attract liberal support.

But a Yankee and an Irishman long have represented Massachusetts in the Senate. For 26 years they were David I. Walsh and some Yankee. Now they are Saltonstall and Kennedy. The Irish are not ready to put an Italian in a seat long occupied by a son of Erin or a descendant of the Mayflower's cargo of blue bloods.

This is not a conclusion reached by logical processes. It is accomplished by an intuitive leap, something a Yankee learns to do through long association with the Irish, who think with their hearts more frequently than with their heads.

This irrational situation, as a factor in the Saltonstall-Furcolo contest, indicates that, in this instance, Republican confidence is not so strange as it seems.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

RUSSELL and the captain were just finishing as we came in the dining saloon. Russell stopped for a moment, blew on a raw red fist and winked at me.

"You'll be bored to hear that Ed and Bebe left safely. Nobody stopped them here, anyway. I promised to send their luggage to general delivery, Chicago. They didn't dare take anything with them."

I said that was fine. I introduced Grodnik to Capt. Jellicoe and then we sat down.

"Steak's always fine here, captain," I said, knowing Grodnik's weakness. I handed him the menu. Lunch took us more than an hour. Grodnik was hungry and I didn't try to hurry him. I couldn't think of what to do next. If I had held Boltinck and turned him over to the local cops, maybe they would have let me tag along with their investigation. But I had traded Boltinck for an almost useless tip that didn't seem helpful just now. "A trick," Boltinck had said, "not a place to meet, but something tricky." And that was no help. I sat back and lit a cigarette.

"Anything working in your brain, captain?"

"Not when I'm eating," Grodnik said serenely.

"Do you think the FBI would let us go along if they've got a lead?"

"No chance," Grodnik said. "The city cops won't freeze me out, though they won't go out of their way to help me any. But the feds are out."

"That's what I figured. Well, we've got Boltinck's tip. Stewart and his girl are meeting in New Orleans. But not at a place. No specific rendezvous. But they have a plan that satisfies them. They're sure it will work. So what does that mean?"

He said: "We know it's New Orleans, at least. So we know more than the cops or the FBI. We know they're needed for Brazil. Everything out of here will be searched right down to the rivets—trains, planes, ships, the works. That gives us a good chance. But that doesn't help you a bit, does it?"

"Not a bit," I agreed. "Not if the FBI nabs him when I'm not around. Suppose Stewart and his girl . . . what's her name again?"

"Mary McVicker," Grodnik said. "Suppose they . . . My voice dwindled to silence as I stared at the doorway. There was a ferocious bearded pirate in a wide torn hat, floppy breeches, buckled shoes and a ripped jersey. I rose half out of my chair before I spotted the bandage poking out from under the hat. "What the heck are you?"

"Dominique You, me," Russell grinned. He crossed his arms, showing fake tattoos on both forearms. A pair of silver-bound dueling pistols stuck out from a scarlet sash.

"Dominique you-me," I parroted. "You're off your chump."

"Not you-me, you jerk," Russell grinned. "Just you. Old Dominique. You was Jean LaFitte's right-hand man. This is my Mardi Gras get-up. Pretty fierce, eh?"

Grodnik stared at me blankly. "It's terrific," I said. "You a member of one of the parading outfits?"

"One of the Crews? Oh, no. That's just for the local residents. No, this rig is for Masking Day. Everybody wears something then. I think I'll be spectacular, no?"

"You'll be spectacular, yes," I agreed. "You mean everybody does that here? Not just a chosen few?"

"Everybody. Even you, I'll bet."

"Sure. Just get me a high paper hat, I'll be right in character."

"Feeling like a dunce, are you? Me, I feel wonderful. I hung a few love-locks on Boltinck's chops and I feel fine. Well, I'm off to astound the captain. I'll see you . . ."

"Hey," I yelled. "When is this Masking Day?"

"Mardi Gras, dope. Fat Tuesday."

Russell prowled out of the saloon, pausing to leap wildly at a busy steward. I lifted an eyebrow at Grodnik.

"What do you think?"

"Masking Day. If Russell is right, everybody will be running around in some zany getup. Masks. What a cover for a man who wants to duck the cops."

"Could be," Grodnik said placidly. He swallowed and poured another cup of coffee. Then he leaned back and unwrapped a cheap cigar. "You go around pulling off masks and somebody's going to pull off your ears."

"But suppose Stewart and his girl . . . My mouth hung wide and dropped even more. Just the thin edge of a chance, the wild, ungodly chance. But it could be. Sure it could."

"You sick?" Grodnik asked calmly.

"I had a thought," I said stupidly. "Knocked me over. How long since you did any leg-work, captain?"

"Too long."

"I've got an idea. I'll have to check. You coming?"

Grodnik moved with no hesitation. He picked up his gray felt from a chair, placed it squarely on his head using both hands.

We got off the boat quickly. Nobody tried to stop us, but there were three hard-eyed young men who looked us over thoughtfully as we climbed the cobbled embankment.

"Wait a minute," I said. I walked over to a glass telephone

Kids Choose Soup Leaders

TURN your kids loose in the kitchen and what will they eat? Just watch. They head for the shelf where you keep soup. And if your youngsters are like most, they reach for one of these — golden chicken noodle, rosy tomato, or hearty vegetable soup.

It's a statistical fact that the junior set goes for this soup trio. In a new survey of more than 1500 school-agers, they gave "highest grades" to chicken noodle, tomato and vegetable soups. As you could guess, other favorite foods are hamburgers, orange juice, frankfurters, and spaghetti. This is true of both boys and girls, from sweet six to fair fourteen. The kids studied represent all parts of the country. . . . Washington; Florida; Texas; Missouri; New York; etc.

With such popularity, soup belongs at many school lunches this fall. Heat up this bubbling, warming main dish. Spread some dandy sandwiches. And you'll be ready with a smile when the gang comes rushing in at noon. Happy thought. The same fine fixings will carry well in a lunchbox.

Kids Choose Soup Leaders

TURN your kids loose in the kitchen and what will they eat? Just watch. They head for the shelf where you keep soup. And if your youngsters are like most, they reach for one of these—golden chicken noodle, rosy tomato, or hearty vegetable soup.

It's a statistical fact that the junior set goes for this soup trio. In a new survey of more than 1500 school-agers, they gave "highest grades" to chicken noodle, tomato and vegetable soups. As you could guess, other favorite foods are hamburgers, orange juice, frankfurters, and spaghetti. This is true of both boys and girls, from sweet six to fair fourteen. The kids studied represent all parts of the country.

Washington, Florida; Texas; Missouri; New York; etc.

With such popularity, soup belongs at many school lunches this fall. Heat up this bubbling, warming main dish. Spread some dandy sandwiches. And you'll be ready with a smile when the gang comes rushing in at noon. Happy thought. The same fine fixings will carry well in a lunchbox.

Gigantic Florida Building Project To Be Worth Billion, Gets Underway

By Central Press
FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla.—There is in the making here a project so fantastic, of such grandiose proportions, that it staggers the imagination.

Along the coral sands that border the ocean north of the city there is great activity. Heavy equipment is leveling ground and digging canals, preliminary to the construction of a $2 million beach club, a $4 million golf club, a model shopping center, and $2.5 million hospital and medical center.

Here also are the sites for 8,000 to 10,000 beautiful homes, and the 25 luxury hotels which will line the beach of the fabulous Galt Ocean Mile, a tract purchased early this year by the Coral Ridge Development corporation for a record $20 million, and entailing additional land to a total of 2,466 acres.

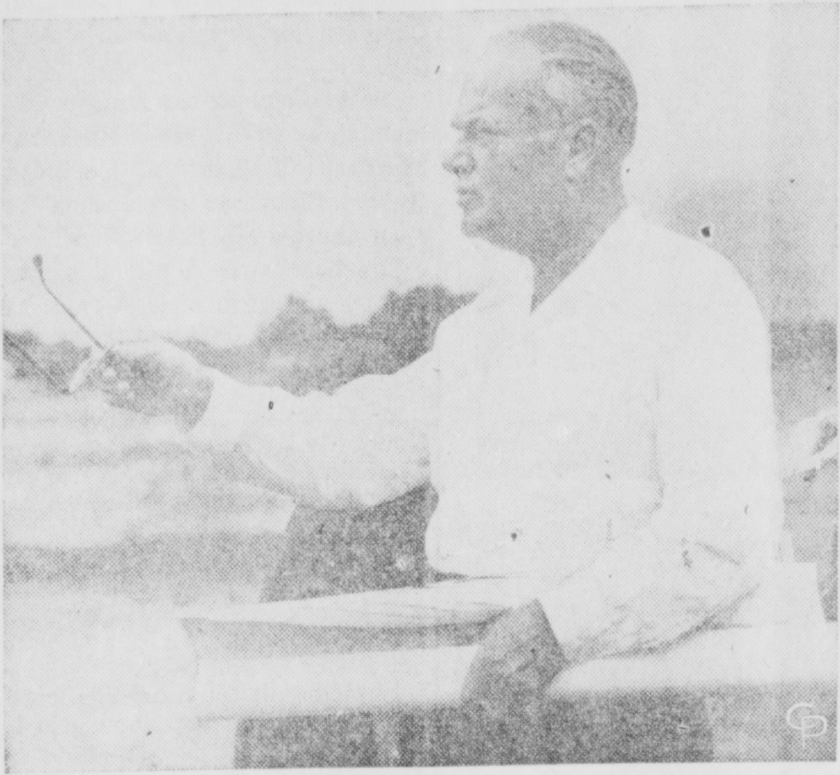

Heretofore, this wilderness stretch was owned by Arthur T. Galt, a gentle, kindly man who loved it for its primitive beauty. He had a vision that eventually this waste of mangrove and palmetto would give way to gracious homes with palm-shaded lawns where the tropical green would be lit by the flame of Florida's red hibiscus.

FOR 40 YEARS Galt held this land while Miami and Miami Beach burgeoned to the south and Palm Beach flourished to the north. Steadily Florida's Gold Coast encroached from both directions until Galt's land stood the only undeveloped tract in the entire 75-mile stretch.

The time had come to make the move. Arthur Galt conveyed his property to two men whose judgment he trusted—Jim Hunt and Steve Calder—men who loved the land as he did himself. They had developed substantial tracts to the south of the Galt Mile, all in a manner that satisfied Galt. He knew that his holdings were passing into the right hands.

Hunt and Calder are themselves a study in human relations. Hunt is the suave, city-bred businessman; Calder, the rough and ready graduate of the Florida real estate "boom and bust" school of the 1920s. Both know their business.

James S. Hunt's biography lists rare achievements. As a youth he enlisted in the Royal Air Force in World War I. His picture can be seen in the Ford museum, Dearborn, Mich., as a "pioneer in aviation."

Hunt received the Distinguished Flying Cross for valor in the Northern Russian campaign, was discharged with the rank of major, and returned to his home city, Detroit.

It was Hunt who devised the "NADA Red Book" used by every automobile man in America today as a scale for used-car values. It is the "Bible" of the trade. He was prominent, also, in Detroit's civic and business affairs. By 1941 he was ready to retire.

Then came World War II. Hunt enlisted in the Coast Guard and was cited for outstanding gallantry in the landing at Salerno where he went in under heavy enemy fire and secured valuable information regarding the land batteries.

COMING back from sea duty, with the rank of commander, he was placed in charge of morale for the Coast Guard and, while in Washington, he put the post exchanges on a business basis with a "rotating fund" which permitted enlisted men to borrow for the purpose of making purchases. Profits grew and the PXs prospered.

In 1946, Hunt came to Ft.

Lauderdale, this time to retire for good. However, retiring simply is not in his make-up. Before he realized it, he was back in business and working the clock around seven days a week. Inevitably, he turned to real estate where he found an invaluable counselor, the redoubtable Stephen A. Calder.

FT. LAUDERDALE real estate history has been written since then. Not long ago, James Stone Hunt received that city's first "Medal of Honor"; was named its first citizen—"Mister Ft. Lauderdale."

Hunt believes in the future of Florida, and of Ft. Lauderdale. "The best investment on earth is earth," he tells the 600 salesmen in that area. "We are building to build," he adds, "not to destroy."

Purchase of the Galt Mile was announced in January. Auditors, engineers and architects drew up a blue print outlining a 20-year development program. In six months of flurried selling, that plan has gone by the board.

The Galt Mile will be finished in 10 years, experts say; maybe less. The property, based on a land value of $100 million, will then be worth more than $1 billion, another miracle out of Florida's coral sands.

Corner Space Attractive With Good Planning

If the interior treatment of your corner windows has you cornered, here's how to use venetian blinds, curtains and drapes to best advantage.

To maintain the fine illusion of space, two corner windows should be treated as one large unit. Don't crowd curtains or draperies into the corner. Instead, decorate the extreme ends of the windows. Helpful here are window rods which curve gracefully around the corner.

Another way to treat the corner is to frame it with a scalloped plywood cornice, wallpapered to match another part of the room.

A simple and distinctive treatment is the use of an eight-inch ruffling used only across the top of the two windows.

MORE EXPENSIVE is draw drapery on a curved rod which can fall on the sides during the day and close up at night.

The venetian blinds covering the two windows should be mitred. The slats as they meet in the very apex of the corner should be cut on the slant so that each blind can be moved freely without interference from its neighbor.

When just one corner window is involved, venetian blinds and draw curtains or drapes are an interesting way to tackle the problem. Have the drapes start on the wall adjacent to the corner window and wind around well over the other side of the window.

New, 1-Handle Kitchen Faucet Now Available

Busy housewives will be glad to know that a new, single-handle kitchen faucet designed with a pressure-assisted shut off that eliminates faucet drip is now available.

This modern faucet has no washers or spindles to replace, no seats to renew. This avoids water waste, plumbing repairs and breakdowns.

The faucet permits selection of water temperature before the water is turned on; the position of the handle acts as temperature indicator. As a result, says the manufacturer, scalding hazards are reduced, kitchen accidents are minimized.

The manufacturer lists the fact

ine. The paint should be strained through cheesecloth after mixing to remove lumps or paint that might clog the nozzle of the gun.

When painting, keep the gun pointed at right angles to the wall and use a full arm motion from side to side. Hold the nozzle six inches from the surface. Pull the trigger after you have started your stroke and release it before you've finished. Lap each succeeding stroke one half the length of a spray pattern over the preceding one.

Spray Painting Does Fine Job Much Faster

Spray painting doesn't call for any more precautions than brush painting, and you can paint your house three to six times faster.

Most amateurs make the mistake of thinning their paint too much for a spray gun. The average good exterior paint can be sprayed just as it comes from the can, however, check with your paint dealer on the point.

Spray Painting Does Fine Job Much Faster

Spray painting doesn't call for any more precautions than brush painting, and you can paint your house three to six times faster.

Most amateurs make the mistake of thinning their paint too much for a spray gun. The average good exterior paint can be sprayed just as it comes from the can, however, check with your paint dealer on the point.

For best results, make sure the surface is well cleaned before you start reminds a household magazine. The paint should be strained through cheesecloth after mixing to remove lumps or paint that might clog the nozzle of the gun.

When painting, keep the gun pointed at right angles to the wall and use a full arm motion from side to side. Hold the nozzle six inches from the surface. Pull the trigger after you have started your stroke and release it before you've finished. Lap each succeeding stroke one half the length of a spray pattern over the preceding one.

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is an ABC on what President Eisenhower has just called a "major setback" in the fight against communism: the French refusal last night to join a single European army.

The Western Allies decided on a military alliance when, after the war, it became apparent the Communists were determined to take by force what they couldn't get otherwise. Big example was seizure of power in Czechoslovakia.

The Allies created NATO—North Atlantic Treaty Organization—under which they pledged to help one another in case of attack. Each member would keep its own army but there would be a general staff for planning.

NATO now has 14 members. Twelve signed the NATO agreement April 4, 1949: the United States, Britain, France, Italy, Canada, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Denmark, Iceland, Norway, Portugal, Greece and Turkey joined in February 1952.

The United States contributes one third of NATO's cost. The other members put up four fifths of the forces. This country has six American divisions with NATO in Europe.

West Germany was not included in NATO. There were obvious reasons. This country, Britain and France — still keeping occupation troops in Germany—have not required her independence or what diplomats call sovereignty.

Lacking sovereignty, she can't rearm. So long as she is defenseless, the Russians have a soft spot for attack. The Russians have opposed not only NATO but rearming of Germany. The Allies faced a question:

How to let Germany rearm but in a way to prevent her becoming a menace to her neighbors someday. In June 1950 the Communists showed how far they were willing to go in aggression with their attack on South Korea.

Four months later, on Oct. 26, 1950, Rene Pleen, then French Premier, proposed a plan which in that early stage won approval of the French Parliament. It was the single European army idea, called EDC — the European Defense Community.

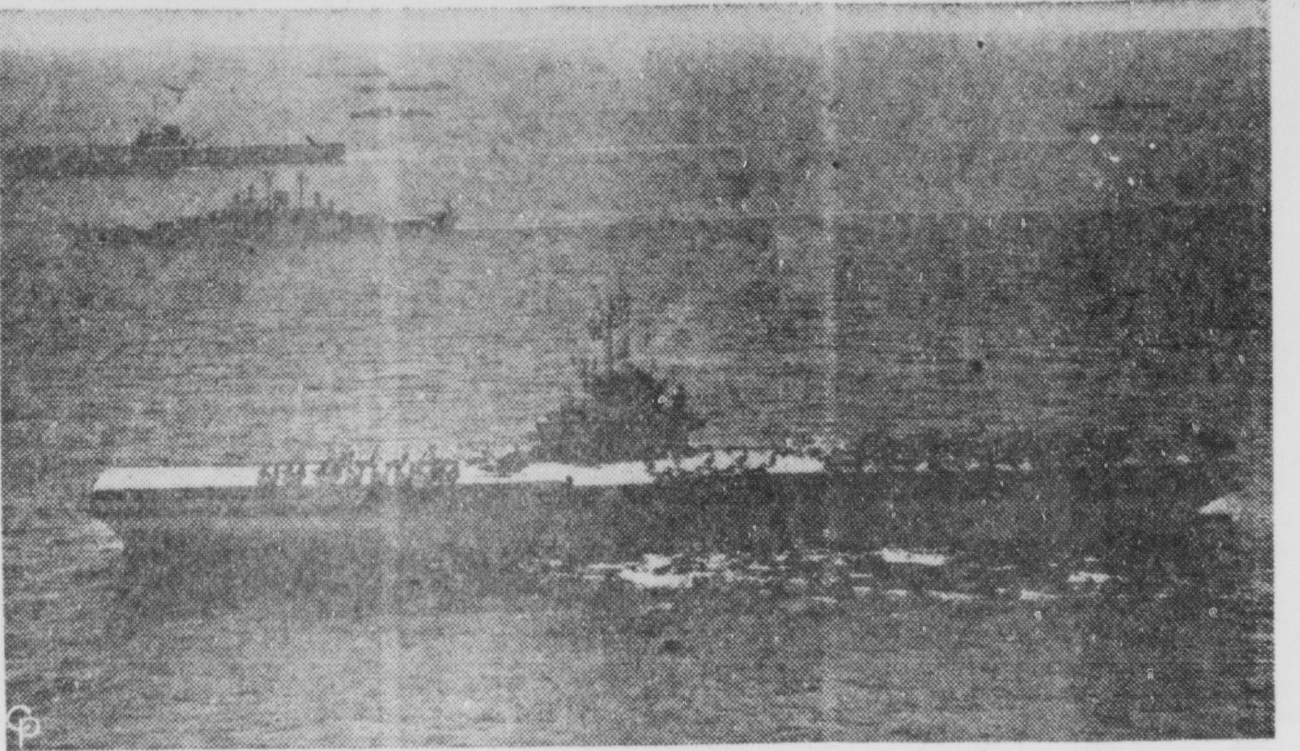

This is how it shaped up: six European countries—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands—would pool their armies in a single European army under a unified command of their own choosing.

Except for West Germany, all these EDC countries were already members of NATO. But whereas the other NATO allies would keep their individual armies, the EDC countries no longer would have national armies of their own.

This single European army—made up of troops from the six EDC countries—would be part of NATO's defense planning.

On May 27, 1952, the six EDC countries' foreign ministers signed an agreement to set it up. This did not by itself create EDC. It couldn't come into existence until the parliaments of all six countries approved.

Four of them—West Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands — gave approval. The Italian Parliament didn't approve but was expected to when the French did. The French Parliament, rent with factions, balked.

Russia tried every trick to keep EDC from being born. Communists in the French Parliament, following the Russian line, fought EDC approval. French nationalists, who wanted France to keep her national army and not merge it in EDC, fought it too.

In addition, there was French fear of Germany rearmend under any circumstances, and fear, no matter how EDC was unified, that Germany would control it. Russia played on these French worries.

The United States and Britain looked upon EDC as essential for defense of Europe, making use of German manpower, and at the same time keeping Germany from becoming a menace as she might with her own national army.

Although France had proposed EDC four years ago and France agreed to set up EDC two years ago, no French premier chanced asking Parliament, with its hostile mood, to vote on it. The French would have felt safer tied into EDC with Germany if Britain would join EDC also. Britain wouldn't.

At last the present French Premier and foreign minister, Pierre Mendes-France, decided to put EDC to a vote in Parliament. First he tried to get the other five EDC countries to agree to changes in the 1952 agreement which would have made EDC more a fiction than a reality.

He suggested, for instance, that EDC be on trial for eight years and that anyone of the six members could veto what the other five wanted to do. The other five turned him down.

No lover of EDC, Mendes-France asked Parliament to vote. It did, last night, against EDC. That wrecked it.

Rio To Ready Site For Church Meet

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—The site here for the 36th Eucharistic Congress, expected to draw two million Roman Catholic pilgrims next July, doesn't yet exist.

It is still part of beautiful Guanabara Bay, around which Rio de Janeiro spreads.

Before next June municipal and church authorities hope to fill in more than 131,000 square yards of land in the bay, only a short distance from the heart of the city. Here the pilgrims will meet and pray before a gigantic altar of Brazilian wood.

The reclaimed area — ultimately to stretch for 1.2 miles along the shore — will eventually be a site for highways, parks and housing developments.

Miss Lucille Palmer, clerk in a sporting goods store, told police that a man in a soiled T-shirt asked her to show him a .45 caliber automatic. He checked it to see that it would load properly, inserted a clip of bullets, pointed it at Miss Palmer, and took $35 from the cash register.

He walked out without paying for the pistol, a $72.50 item.

Electricians Get Electrical Trouble

CHICAGO (AP)—There were more than 3,000 electricians in the International Amphitheater yesterday when the electric public address system conked out.

Mayor Martin H. Kennelly was addressing the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers when suddenly his voice faded out. The mayor waited for 15 minutes while some electrical workers on duty, not convention delegates, made the necessary repairs.

Sokolsky's These Days

Now in the days of the New Deal and the Fair Deal, the Internal Revenue Bureau always sent nice, young men to go over my income tax statements line for line and word for word. Like all good citizens, I do not swindle, but I do recognize that there might be a difference of opinion.

Whenever I was called upon to pay a nominal sum, which was probably added to my tax to prove that I had had a visitation, I used to say that when the Republicans got in, not only would taxes be reduced but the method of collection would be less punitive. I had great faith in the Republican Party.

Alas, recently a nice, young man from the Internal Revenue Bureau came along and he disallowed what the Democrats let me deduct. I suppose that might be called Democratic liberalism.

So that brings me to the reason for this letter. You hand money to the French, the Pakistani, to Nehru in India and Haile Selassie in Ethiopia. How about slipping me some of the American taxpayers' money to help pay my revised tax bills?

Mind you, I do not want a loan; it would be dishonest to call it that. What I need is a grant, something you take but never pay back. And I guarantee that if you hand me a moiety out of the billions you just got from Congress, I will never doublecross our good friend Foster Dulles at a conference, because nobody will ask me to a conference.

Perhaps my appeal is in vain as I am only an American citizen who chooses to live in the United States. As ever yours,

George E. Sokolsky

Beater Of Auto Just 'Overheated'

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A policeman who spotted a motorist whamming away at his stalled car with a baseball bat in 98-degree heat got a simple explanation.

"It got overheated," said the driver. "I guess I got overheated, too."

All the auto's windows were broken in the onslaught.

"I've cooled off now," the motorist told Officer Lyle Fagan as he drove away.

HOME RUNS grow on trees. After 50 years of growth the ashwood tree is felled in a forest in New York state.

BILLETS cut from Adirondack ashwood are piled for seasoning.

STAR Gil Hodges of Dodgers examines bat as Hal Schumacher, ex-Giant pitcher now a bat manufacturing company official, looks on.

DIPPED in conditioning bath, bats are air-dried.

MAJOR LEAGUE baseball bats are "grown" on trees. It's a particular kind of hardwood grown in forest belts in the lower Adirondacks, Catskills and Southern Tier of New York state. It's a coincidence that prized home run bats should be found so near to Baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., official birthplace of the American game. It takes 40 to 50 years of growth to produce a single bat of big league quality. The wood used is northern white ash, preferably of second growth. There are several bat manufacturers, with three leading producers getting all their ashwood from New York state and the fourth, the largest, in Kentucky, getting half its ashwood from New York state and half from the state of Pennsylvania.

Outstanding Rookie Awards Nearly Limited To 2 Men

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — It doesn't look as though the members of the Baseball Writers' Assn. will be able to steam up an argument even among themselves when they sit down to vote for the major leagues' two outstanding rookies of the current season. This is unusual for the boys like to argue.

Unless all signs fail, the balloting will produce an almost unanimous agreement that Wally Moon, the slugging young outfield sensation of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Bob Grim, the part-time hardener who has racked up 17 victories for the Yankees, are the cream of an exceptionally fine crop of freshmen.

The only American Leaguer which might give Grim a small rattle for the honor appears to be Jim Finigan, the crack young third baseman whom the Philadelphia Athletics obtained from the Yankees in their big winter trade. Finigan promises to be a solid 300 hitter and is a slick fielder, but his play with the bedraggled A's scarcely has been as eye-catching as that of Grim in keeping the Yankees in the pennant race.

Moon, the phenomenal who smote a home run his first time up in the majors and who had a good chance of leading all National League batters in total hits, has no real rival in sight. It has been some time since a phenomenal clouter showed up in either league. He's a deer in the field too.

One of the most interesting features about the emergence of Grim and Moon as outright stars is that neither was even on the parent club's roster when he reported down South the past spring. Moon still was the property of the Cardinals' Rochester farm club, while Grim, after a two-year hitch with the Marines, was ticketed to report to Birmingham of the Eastern League when he showed up at the Yankees' tryout camp in February.

Maybe that was no fluke win Chris Christensen scored over Billy Graham. The Danish welterweight champion looked impressive in his debut last night in battering Johnny Lombardo of Mt. Carmel, Pa., for a 10-round decision at eastern Parkway Arena. Christensen did everything

Giants Hold Edge On Eve Of Bum Series

New Yorkers Can Lose And Still Remain On Top In NL Flag Chase

By The Associated Press

No matter what happens now, the New York Giants still will be in first place when they collide head on with the Brooklyn Dodgers in their three-game showdown series starting Friday in the Polo Grounds.

The margin might be as small as two percentage points. It could be as much as 2 1/2 games. But big or small it will be the Giants on top with the Dodgers trying to climb any small boy with experience on a greased pole can tell you that going up is the hardest.

The Dodgers, who had been burning up the West like a prairie fire, ran afoul of an old Brooklyn killer from several seasons back last night and dropped a 7-5 decision in Milwaukee.

The Giants whipped St. Louis 4-1 with Johnny Antonelli becoming the first National League pitcher to win 20 games. New York is now 2 1/2 games ahead of Brooklyn.

Bobby Thomson, the No. 1 public enemy in Brooklyn since his dramatic homer in the 1951 playoffs, showed up in a Milwaukee uniform and smashed a three-run homer in the seventh inning for the winning runs.

The Braves went into the seventh trailing 5-4. After one out Bill Bruton beat out an infield single. A sacrifice put him on second. Joe Adcock walked and Thomson drilled one of Carl Erskine's offerings over the left field fence, 400 feet away.

There were some home runs earlier too. Duke Snider hit his 34th with the bases empty in the first. Jack Dittmer gave the Braves a brief 4-3 lead with a two-run drive in the fourth.

Antonelli, the first Giant left-hander to win 20 since Carl Hubbell did it 17 years ago, pitched one of his best games. He held the Cards to four singles, walked three and struck out five. The Giants didn't pull ahead until the seventh when a pair of singles wrapped around a fumble produced the tie-breaking run.

Dusty Rhodes drove home the other pair in the ninth with a bases-loaded single.

The Cleveland Indians, who put their 4 1/2-game American League lead on the line against New York in a three-game series starting in Yankee Stadium tonight, wound up the Boston end of their season yesterday with their 11th victory in 11 starts against the Red Sox at Fenway Park.

They came from four runs behind to nip the Sox 5-4 with a five-run rally in the seventh. Baltimore won its third straight from Washington 3-1 and Cincinnati made it five in a row with a 5-1 triumph over Philadelphia in the only other major league action.

Aging Heinie Majecki, slashed a three-run homer during the Cleveland uprising. Five of Cleveland's 10 pitchers saw action, starting with rookie Ray Narleski and ending with Mike Garcia.

Bob Turley of the Orioles had a no-hitter working until Jim Busby bunted safely in the sixth, but he had to strike out pinch hitter Maury McDermott with the bases loaded in the ninth to preserve his 11th triumph.

Another one of those three-run homers that figured prominently in yesterday's games came in the Cincinnati victory over the Phils. Jim Greengrass hit this one during a four-run Redleg rally in the sixth.

Tribe Holding Best Edge In AL Since '48

NEW YORK (AP)—For the first time since 1948 when Cleveland's Indians last won an American League flag, they are in a good position to knock the New York Yankees out of the race before Labor Day.

A Cleveland sweep of the three-game series which opens tonight with Early Wynn (18-9) going against the Yanks' Bob Grim (17-5) would leave the world champs 1/2 games back with only 22 to play.

Even if Casey Stengel's men win one of the three, their only hope would be to sweep the doubleheader in Cleveland Sept. 12 and win 15 out of 20 other remaining contests while the Indians slumped to less than .500 percentage ball.

Yesterday's 5-4 victory for the Tribe in Boston was another come-from-behind affair and the 28th triumph for Cleveland out of 38 games decided by a one-run margin. All Indian runs came in the seventh, three of them on a homer by Hank Majeski.

With nine won out of 11 on the current road trip, Cleveland's victory total of 94 games has been exceeded only twice in the club's history—in 1920 when 98 victories brought the Indians their first pennant and six years ago when 97 won the second Cleveland flag.

There seems to be a general impression that the Indians have made a habit of getting nudged out of first place by the Yankees in the final month. Actually, it has happened only once since the end of World War II, in 1951.

That year, when the Tribe had 24 games left, as it does today, the Yanks were in first place by a game. The Indians moved into a one-game lead with only 10 games left, but it was not a true lead, inasmuch as the Yanks had played four less games and lost one less. Then came a two-game Cleveland-New York series the Tribe lost 5-1 and 2-1, and the Yanks went on to cop the pennant by five games.

Reds Chalk Their Fifth Straight Win

CINCINNATI (AP)—Within two games of that elusive .500 mark, the Cincinnati Redlegs have, for them, at least a substantial winning streak going.

The Reds won their fifth straight last night, defeating the Philadelphia Phils, 5-1. In doing so, they added to a different kind of streak for the Phils, who now have lost eight in a row.

The Reds got good pitching from little Jackie Collum, making his first start of the season. But as usual, it took a big gun (this time Jim Greengrass) to assure the victory. Greengrass smashed his 27th homer of the season in a big sixth inning in which the Reds got five runs, three on the homer.

Collum stranded 12 Phillies while scattering eight hits, three of them doubles. And thrice he loaded the bases but was able to hold the opposition scoreless. It was his seventh victory against two defeats.

Aside from Greengrass' clout, Collum's major help came from Johnny Temple, who got three straight singles, and Roy McMillan, who stopped a Philadelphia threat in the second inning with a sensational fielding play.

With the bases loaded and two out, Roy raced back of second to grab a grounder by Curt Simmons which had caromed off Collum's leg. The throw to first caught Curt by a whisker.

Collum stranded 12 Phillies while scattering eight hits, three of them doubles. And thrice he loaded the bases but was able to hold the opposition scoreless. It was his seventh victory against two defeats.

Aside from Greengrass' clout, Collum's major help came from Johnny Temple, who got three straight singles, and Roy McMillan, who stopped a Philadelphia threat in the second inning with a sensational fielding play.

With the bases loaded and two out, Roy raced back of second to grab a grounder by Curt Simmons which had caromed off Collum's leg. The throw to first caught Curt by a whisker.

Giants Hold Edge On Eve Of Bum Series

New Yorkers Can Lose And Still Remain On Top In NL Flag Chase

By The Associated Press

No matter what happens now, the New York Giants still will be in first place when they collide head on with the Brooklyn Dodgers in their three-game showdown series starting Friday in the Polo Grounds.

The margin might be as small as two percentage points. It could be as much as 2½ games. But big or small it will be the Giants on top with the Dodgers trying to climb any small boy with experience on a greased pole can tell you that going up is the hardest.

The Dodgers, who had been burning up the West like a prairie fire, ran afoul of an old Brooklyn killer from several seasons back last night and dropped a 7-5 decision in Milwaukee.

The Giants whipped St. Louis 4-1 with Johnny Antonelli becoming the first National League pitcher to win 20 games. New York is now 2½ games ahead of Brooklyn.

Bobby Thomson, the No. 1 public enemy in Brooklyn since his dramatic homer in the 1951 playoffs between the Giants and Dodgers, showed up in a Milwaukee uniform and smashed a three-run homer in the seventh inning for the winning runs.

The Braves went into the seventh trailing 5-4. After one out Bill Bruton beat out an infield single. A sacrifice put him on second. Joe Adcock walked and Thomson drilled one of Carl Erskin's offerings over the left field fence, 400 feet away.

There were some home runs earlier too. Duke Snider hit his 34th with the bases empty in the first. Jack Dittmer gave the Braves a brief 4-3 lead with a two-run drive in the fourth.

Antonelli, the first Giant left-hander to win 20 since Carl Hubbell did it 17 years ago, pitched one of his best games. He held the Cards to four singles, walked three and struck out five. The Giants didn't pull ahead until the seventh when a pair of singles wrapped

The Cleveland Indians, who put their 4½-game American League lead on the line against New York in a three-game series starting in Yankee Stadium tonight, wound up the Boston end of their season yesterday with their 11th victory in 11 starts against the Red Sox at Fenway Park.

They came from four runs behind to nip the Sox 5-4 with a five-run rally in the seventh. Baltimore won its third straight from Washington 3-1 and Cincinnati made it five in a row with a 5-1 triumph over Philadelphia in the only other major league action.

Aging Heinie Majecki, slashed a three-run homer during the Cleveland uprising. Five of Cleveland's 10 pitchers saw action, starting with rookie Ray Narleski and ending with Mike Garcia.

Another one of those three-run homers that figured prominently in yesterday's game came in the Cincinnati victory over the Phils. Jim Greengrass hit this one during a four-run Redleg rally in the sixth.

Tribe Holding Best Edge In AL Since '48

NEW YORK (AP)—For the first time since 1948 when Cleveland's Indians last won an American League flag, they are in a good position to knock the New York Yankees out of the race before Labor Day.

A Cleveland sweep of the three-game series which opens tonight with Early Wynn (18-9) going against the Yanks' Bob Grim (17-5) would leave the world champs 7½ games back with only 22 to play.

Even if Casey Stengel's men win one of the three, their only hope would be to sweep the double-header in Cleveland Sept. 12 and win 15 out of 20 other remaining contests while the Indians slumped to less than .500 percentage ball.

Yesterday's 5-4 victory for the Tribe in Boston was another comeback from behind affair and the 28th triumph for Cleveland out of 38 games decided by a one-run margin. All Indian runs came in the seventh, three of them on a homer by Hank Majeski.

With nine won out of 11 on the current road trip, Cleveland's victory total of 94 games has been exceeded only twice in the club's history—in 1920 when 98 victories brought the Indians their first pennant and six years ago when 97 won the second Cleveland flag.

There seems to be a general impression that the Indians have made a habit of getting nudged out of first place by the Yankees in the final month. Actually, it has happened only once since the end of World War II, in 1951.

That year, when the Tribe had 24 games left, as it does today, the Yanks were in first place by a game. The Indians moved into a one-game lead with only 10 games left, but it was not a true lead, inasmuch as the Yanks had played four less games and lost one less. Then came a two-game Cleveland-New York series the Tribe lost 5-1 and 2-1, and the Yanks went on to cop the pennant by five games.

Bob Turley of the Orioles had a no-hitter working until Jim Busby bunted safely in the sixth, but he had to strike out pinch hitter Maury McDermott with the bases loaded in the ninth to preserve his 11th triumph.

Corn Harvest In County May Be Delayed By Wet Weather

ROUNDUP

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here headed by County Agent Larry Best is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

The Pickaway County corn crop now has sufficient moisture to see it through to maturity; in fact continued wet weather will delay maturity and corn harvest. This will cause wheat seeding to be delayed beyond the Oct. 2 date which is about the ideal seeding date for maximum yields.

The Hessian fly, which is a serious wheat pest, will be plentiful this fall. There was some fly damage in northern counties this year.

There is much volunteer wheat at present. This volunteer wheat will without doubt receive eggs from adult flies in September. These eggs will hatch, bring forth adult flies in the spring of 1955 which in turn will lay eggs in the 1955 wheat yields.

Farmers who jump the gun this fall and seed wheat before the fly free date (Oct. 2) will just be adding to what may be a rather serious Hessian Fly problem. So please do not seed wheat this fall until after Oct. 2.

SEPTEMBER is the best month to fumigate stored grain if grain weevils and other grain insects are present. Inspect your grain for insect presence. If it appears grain insects may be present fumigate with carbon bisulfide. Some poor results have been reported with materials containing two or more carbon compounds. If mixtures are used more material is required for effective results.

Flies are really bad. The new dry poisoned baits are working wonders. Surface spraying with lindane in dairy barns and other farm buildings supplements the dry poisoned baits and is still an excellent practice.

Aphids are again appearing in vegetable and flower gardens. Malathion applied as a spray will get them in a hurry.

The corn crop in northern Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Ohio and southern Minnesota and Wisconsin looks wonderful, they are having plenty of rain, too.

School Bells Ring For 38 Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—School bells will ring this academic year for a record 38 million students, says Commissioner of Education Samuel M. Brownell.

Brownell gave this estimate of the 1954-55 enrollment in U. S. schools and colleges in a weekend statement which listed the previous year's total at 36,114,900.

While this is the 10th straight year the number of students has climbed, the education commissioner said still bigger numbers are on their way to class because of high birth rates since early in World War II.

Miners Picket Cadiz Courthouse

CADIZ (AP)—Belmont and Jefferson counties have free commodities. Why can't Harrison? That is what was printed on placards carried by United Mine Workers unionists who yesterday picketed the courthouse.

The miners, who have many jobless in their ranks, want to share in distribution of surplus food by the federal government. The commissioners are reluctant to spend what they estimate would be $800 to $1,000 a month as the cost of distributing the surplus commodities.

Governor Lauds Aircraft Show

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche has issued a proclamation calling on the people of Ohio to join in inviting the nation "to come to Ohio and Dayton" over the Labor Day weekend for the National Aircraft Show, Sept. 4-6.

"Once again the eyes of the nation will be on Dayton, birthplace of aviation and host city for the great 1954 National Aircraft Show," the proclamation said. It added: "Ohio, which gave flight and light to the world, is preparing to welcome air-minded thousands from every state and from Canada, Central and South America and Europe for the three-day 'report to the nation' of our aviation industry and our defense."

Van Pelt Appointed To Banking Group

J. C. van Pelt, executive secretary of The Circleville Savings and Banking Company, has been appointed to the Installment Credit Committee of the Ohio Bankers Association.

The announcement came from F. George Heidacher, president of the organization. The committee on which van Pelt will serve is one of nine standing committees the bankers group maintains.

The Circleville banking official is one of 77 persons to serve on the committee. His group will be headed by a Cleveland banker, J. J. Holland.

Rhodes Claims Lausche Apathetic

COLUMBUS (AP)—James A. Rhodes, Republican candidate for governor, yesterday charged Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche with showing "apathy" towards Ohio's youth. Rhodes said the governor led people to believe that the youth building at the Ohio State Fair would be finished this year.

The building is scheduled for completion in 1955. Rhodes said young fair exhibitors are sleeping in "cattle barns, trucks and open fields." The governor was not available for comment.

Ex-Aide Testifies

COLUMBUS (AP)—John Hall of Portsmouth, former state liquor enforcement chief in the Cleveland district, yesterday spent three hours before the Franklin County grand jury in its investigation of reported shakedowns in the state liquor department.

Friday Opening Scheduled For County School

Another school in Pickaway County opening its doors Friday is Washington Township School.

The Sept. 3 session will last half a day, which is the same schedule as Circleville schools for that day.

The first full day of school will be on Sept. 7 as there are no classes on Labor Day.

Teachers for the 1954-55 term include the following:

MRS. FORREST Kreisel, grade 1; Mrs. Helen Styers, grade 2; Mrs. G. William Speakman, grade 3; Mrs. Deskey Kellough, grade 4; Mrs. Winona Ramsey, grade 5; Miss Ruth Stout and Oakley Leist, departmentalized grades 6, 7 and 8. The cafeteria, which will open the first full day of school, is under the supervision of Mrs. Ralph Betz.

Changes in population in the area have meant a rescheduling of some bus routes. Drivers for the coming year will be the same as last year.

Walter Pickel is school custodian.

Polio Reported

COLUMBUS (AP)—Nine new polio cases were reported here yesterday, setting a record for a single day. The Franklin County polio chapter said five victims were children, four were men.

U.S. Churches Begin Plan Of Indochina Refugee Aid

NEW YORK—A developing program of relief and rehabilitation in Indochina, to assist the hundreds of thousands fleeing Communist domination in northern Viet Nam, is being inaugurated in that conquest-torn country by Protestant denominations in America.

This was announced today by Church World Service coincidentally with the arrival at Saigon, Indochina, of the Rev. John L. Burkholder, special CWS field representative who will form there a basic organization for the administration of cooperative American church aid to the masses of people leaving homes, businesses, farms and possessions behind in seeking sanctuary in the free areas of their nation.

In the projected Indochina program, continuing emergency assistance in the form of clothing food supplies from our national over-abundance and special care for the ill and aged will go forward with careful development of temporary self-help and permanent rehabilitation efforts designed ultimately to aid refugees in becoming completely self-supporting.

been their only homes in many cases for nearly a dozen years."

Because the existing American mission forces in Indochina will be unable alone to cope with even a small portion of the need newly risen from the national partition, he said the cooperative assistance of all of the American denominations is vital.

"The task of meeting this Indochina emergency," Dr. Fairfield said, "will be greatly eased for the American denominations by their opportunity to utilize the increased amounts of surplus commodities made available by recent national legislation for free distribution to the needy abroad by religious and other volunteer agencies."

He termed this "wider opening of the storehouses of our national abundance a Heaven-sent blessing without which it would be many times more difficult for our churches to discharge their Christian obligation to distressed brethren in Indo-China and in areas of distress elsewhere."

290 Live Bombs Found In Japan

TOKYO (AP)—Bomb disposal specialists have cleaned up 30 bomb storage caves which were overlooked in the general confusion of 1945, the Air Force said yesterday. The explosives were found at Misawa Air Base on northern Honshu. In all, 290 live bombs were discovered in 30 well-hidden underground nests.

Would-Be Cabbie's Memory Is Short

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Joseph W. Dunn, 38, of Flint, didn't get his taxicab operator's license yesterday. Today he faces possible perjury charges.

Dunn's application filed with Flint police stated he had never been arrested for a major crime. He admitted "one speeding ticket."

Police said a routine check with the FBI disclosed Dunn had been arrested 18 times on charges ranging from kidnapping to burglary.

Corn Harvest In County May Be Delayed By Wet Weather

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S.
